outdoor home improvement project in mind, call 811 at least two working days in advance of digging any holes.

One call will notify every local utility to come and locate underground facilities, all free of charge. Property owners don't have to be on site for locates.

Workers will visit your property and mark all utilities with color-coded paint along the lawn and possibly the driveway. The paint is water-soluble and will wash away within two weeks. The paint color corresponds with the utility, such as water, electric or gas.

One quick call could save a life, prevent serious injury or avoid costly property damage.

GET OUTAGE READY DURING NATIONAL PREPAREDNESS MONTH

September is National Preparedness Month, a time of year when all of us are encouraged to remember the importance of being prepared for disaster and emergencies.

Storm season is just around the corner in Southwest Washington, making the next few weeks the ideal time to get ready for its arrival.

We work all year long to keep outages at a minimum, but they still happen from time to time. That's why it's wise to have a plan and an emergency kit ready for when the lights go out.

Building a kit is surprisingly easy, just remember to include a few basics:

- Flashlights for everyone in the family, and maybe a few more
- Extra batteries and a battery pack for electronic devices
- Drinking water for everyone in the home, one gallon per person, per day for at least three days
- Nonperishable food
- A manual can opener
- A wind up or battery operated radio
- Medication and hygiene supplies

Store everything in a sturdy container and store it in a place that's easy to reach. It's also a good idea to make it a household project. That way everyone knows what's in it, where it's stored and what to do from the moment the lights go out to the instant they come back on.

For more information or ideas on building your kit, visit our website or visit the American Red Cross's website, redcross.org.
